Here are some basic answers to FAQs about climbing Mt. Kilimanjaro

1. What kind of shape do I have to be in to successfully climb Mt. Kilimanjaro?

You don't have to be an Olympic athlete, but you do need to be in GOOD shape. No mountain climbing experience is necessary – it is a long hike – but you should be able to walk 5-10 hours a day. The pace is generally slow or medium with plenty of stops. It is a difficult, challenging climb due to the steepness and altitude. If you have bad knees you probably shouldn't try to climb Kilimanjaro.

2. What do I carry?

You carry a small backpack with your camera, snacks, water, and things you need during the day. Porters carry the tents, stove, sleeping bag, etc., along with your clothes and things that you don't need during the day.

3. How cold is it?

Temperatures are usually in the 30s and 40s at night, and around 15-25F on the summit. Daytime temperatures are warmer, from the 50s-70s. August weather is usually dry (excellent time to climb).

4. What kind of crew accompanies the group?

There will be mountain guides, a cook who prepares delicious meals, and porters that carry almost everything. They also set up camp (before we arrive) and take down the camp.

Detailed information will be provided to the GeoTours Kilimanjaro group later, and there is much information online at www.ultimatekilimanjaro.com
